“This election
 is a big decision.
 So public broadcasting is my source for intelligent reporting.”

Tom Magnuson, Minneapolis, Minnesota

Public broadcasting combines the power of national programming from American Public Media, PBS and National Public Radio (NPR), with in-depth regional reporting from Minnesota Public Radio News and Twin Cities Public Television’s insightful local coverage, such as Almanac. You can count on this combination of coverage, especially now, to provide the information, analysis, and perspective you need to make decisions this election season. That’s the power of public broadcasting—owned by you, and connected to you, the American Public.
